It has been reported in 1950 that around 1948 a school was established at Kursk for the purpose of training young and intelligent Russian youths, who upon completion of their training here will be posted to Poland to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and will occupy ~~bot~~ posts both in Poland and abroad. Their presence in the Ministry is designed to provide a guarantee against any surprise by the Poles.

Beyond practical matters, the students study Polish and everything relevant to Poland in order that they may impersonate real Poles.

While, ~~connection~~ <sup>not</sup> connection of the Soviet intelligence services with the school has been discovered to date, in many instances since the war there is known to have existed in several instances abroad, a close connection between Polish diplomats and Soviet diplomats who are known to be members of the Soviet Intelligence Services. Moreover, the use made by the S.I.S. of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs as a cover for their intelligence officers who are operating outside the USSR, there is a distinct possibility that the school at least covertly is receiving some direction from Soviet State Security, and that at least the candidates who are chosen for this school are screened by State Security organizations.
